AZTEC DANCERS

dancers from the Aztec Tribe
xotitlan, Mexico City, Mexico.
Aztec dancers have performed all over the world dances taught in their family for generations. They will perform at 12:45 p.m. on the Wilkinson Center West Patio.

The Aztec nation lived at Tenotitlan which was located where the city of Mexico stands today. Tenotitlan is said to be the most beautiful city ever built on this continent. Descriptions given by the first Spanish invaders viewed the city as a city built on islands with beautiful temples, flowers, and plazas. . . a fairyland of beauty and spectacle.

The Aztecs were in control of many of the most powerful tribes in Central America at the time the first white men came. The Aztecs were the rulers, the warriors of the land we now call Mexico. It is estimated that they ruled seventeen million Indians at the time Cortez landed on the east coast of Mexico.

FIRST VISIT

This is the first time a group from this ancient tribe has visited the state of Utah. They do however, participate in other Indian observances in the United States.

Also featured on Wednesday is an Indian Fashion Show in the Wilkinson Center Step Down Lounge at 12:10.

INSTITUTE CHORUS

Thursday, the Sherman Institute Indian Chorus from Riverside, California will perform in the Wilkinson Center Step Down Lounge at 12:10 p.m. and at 8:15 an original Indian Production "A Dawn in the Forest will be presented in the Joseph Smith Auditorium. The production will also be presented Friday at 8:15 p.m. in the Smith Auditorium.

Three Aztec Indians demonstrate Aztec dances. The Aztecs were the rulers of what is now Mexico when the Spaniards arrived under Cortez. Only an estimated 75 members of the original Aztec Tribe maintain their cultural heritage and call themselves Aztecs. This is the first time a group representing the ancient tribe has visited Utah.

AWS To Honor Mrs. Peterson

This year's Outstanding Woman-hood Award will be presented to Esther Peterson by the Associated Women Students of BYU. The event will be Thursday at 7:15 p.m. in the upstairs ballroom of the Wilkinson Center.

Mrs. Peterson has had a varied career. She was appointed Assistant Secretary of Labor for Labor Standards in August 1961 by President John K. Kennedy. In this position, Mrs. Peterson has responsibility for most of the labor standards activities of the U.S. Department of Labor.

A native of Utah, Mrs. Peterson attended public schools in Provo and received her Bachelor of Arts degree from BYU. She also holds a Master's degree from Teachers College, Columbia University.

Mrs. Peterson has been awarded honorary degrees by Smith, Bryant, Montclair, Hood and Mercyhurst Colleges and by the Carnegie Institute of Technology.

In 1957 she became legislative representative of the Industrial Union Department of the AFL-CIO. She continued in this post until January 1961 when she was appointed Director of the Women's Bureau in the Department of Labor by President John K. Kennedy. Later that same year, she was appointed to the additional position of Assistant Secretary of Labor.

Between 1961 and 1963 Mrs. Peterson also served as Executive Vice Chairman of the President's Commission on the Status of Women, under the chairmanship of Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt.

From January 1964 through February 1967, Mrs. Peterson served as Special Assistant to the President for Consumer Affairs and Chairwoman of the President's Committee on Consumer Interests.

Musikal Notes On Government

by Roy Musick

The newly elected officers are faced with the annual problem of staffing.

While many students will believe the "glory-pie" is being distributed only among friend and campaign managers, the perplexed leaders are seeking any and everyone who would like to participate and work.

Committee chairmen, executive assistants, business managers, etc., will be chosen from among previously hard working individuals, who have proven themselves this past academic year, hard working campaign managers, and proven and tried friends. In addition, however, all students on campus are being urged to make their way to the fourth floor and fill out an application for any desirable sounding position.

Eventually over two thousand committee members and activity helpers will be needed to execute the hundreds of activities offered in a school year.

WARNING GIVEN

ASBYU President Paul Gilbert warned officers in the first executive council meeting "to avoid inbreeding and feathered-nesting". Gilbert pointed out several programs failed last year, because friends, seeking merely the honor of a title, refused to work. Consequently, he arranged to have a list of available offices appear in last Friday's Daily Universe.

Wise staffing will be the key to success in government next year, and success will probably be defined around at least three major problems.

The first is the miserable state of the social activities on this so-called "marriage oriented" campus. How Sandy Kross managed to neglect this aspect of his office and why he so abruptly deserted the social office after elections (or was it before?) are questions remaining to be explained. Incoming [illegible] Grant has the nearly dead weekend [illegible] to revive and he has talked about [illegible] a place where people can meet people. For example, the idea of offering pizza in the games area is under consideration.

A few years back students mingled freely in the student snack bar in the Smith building. Stag dances flourished on week ends and during the week. Where do students meet students now, other than in the units?

INFORMATION PLEASE

A second problem is informing the student body what is going on and when. Last year "The Week Ahead" was an aid in this direction but student leaders were unable to feed the Daily Universe correct information far enough in advance to maintain the article's existence.

The year's calendar of events turned into a guessing game with faithful activity goers asking whether or not the event would really take place on the date scheduled. Embarrassingly, too often the main information desk did not know.

Finally, a third problem is the headache of ticket distribution. Hundreds of nasty notes were directed toward the Athletic Board, who more than a few times managed to show quivering opinions by changing policy more than once on a single day.

TICKET DISTRIBUTION

The man to head the ticket distribution at athletic events will be VP of Athletics, Bob Fiehn. At the leadership conference in Brighton last Saturday, Fiehn showed himself to possess an exuberant, rich and jocular personality. One hates to see such a tender predicament like 6 a.m. lines tormenting an extremely likeable leader.

Are members of the student body willing to help? Step up to the fourth floor, please.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

NO JUSTICE

Yes, even in the midst of inflation I wish to comment on prices. How we, the un-Keynesian deplore the mindset of the friendly merchant in giant trusts and combinations of big business!

We form humor on the gobbling up of small industries by the great corporations (see the current issue of Forbes) — and yet here, yes in Provo, a dastardly conspiracy has been operating openly and to our detriment.

I speak of the theaters in the area, and of their price-fixing, seemingly, attitude. No wonder we BYU students called the Provo pockets last year (remember the article in the Universe)! My complaint and criticism is this:

With minimum wages raised, by law, among interstate business, the price of certain commodities has consequently spiraled (raising an inflationary economic theory). However, has the cost of running a projector, mainly electric power, increased?

Certainly not.

Have great and lavish pains gone into the remodeling of the facilities available in Provo? With one case in mind, the question is humorous. Have the salaries of personnel been substantially beefed? And having in mind that the same shows are featured in other areas, yes even here in Utah, for a more modest price of entry, does it also do the films cost that much more?

With a new theater being completed in Provo, one asks, will they be a part of this devious web of pecuniary filth. intrigue? Students! What can be done to halt this grievous attack upon our meager funds? As for myself, I boycott the theaters from time to time; mainly because it takes awhile to save up enough money to go.

Is there no way to let the managers know how upset we are (or should be) over their prices? Is there no justice?

RED CROSS

Dear Editor:

It seems that for every attempt by those who would do something to help their fellowmen there are those who would ridicule their efforts. This generality is done through ignorance, not fact.

After reading the letter to the Editor by Ed Ferrell, in which ridiculing the soap drive held by a well-meaning group on Campus last week for the people of South Vietnamese, I feel the facts should be given the student body.

Contrary to what Mr. Fernstedt stated in his letter, the charitable organizations concerned did investigate the need for this project. When the Campus group contacted our office and solicited our help in this project we told them that only after we had determined a need in South Vietnam for the items concerned would we give them an answer. We then contacted the National office of American Red Cross and determined that there was a need, and we were informed that the soap would be shipped from San Francisco by the American Red Cross, and would be distributed by them in cooperation with the South Vietnamese Red Cross. At no time will the Vietnam government be involved in this project. This soap will be distributed primarily to orphanages and hospitals along with any other areas where the need exists; and according to the information this need does extend to many of our troops in that area.

This drive was approved by the BYU administration and by President Wilkinson because they took a vote time by vote and felt it is unfortunate that those who dissenced did not do the same.

In all fairness to the group men who carried out this project and the many students who contributed, they have a right to feel that they be told the facts and be assured that their efforts were for a worthy cause. I would like to assure Mr. Fernstedt that the American Red Cross does investigate all projects carried out, including the millions of dollars spent locally in disasters and other programs, as well as worldwide help to the needy.

Sincerely,

Dallis A. Christensen

Men seem to have a preoccupation with living life in reverse order. It was the noted playwrite Oscar Wilde who suggested that man ought to treat the serious things life trivially and the trivial things of life seriously.

In fact, an excellent hypothesis is that this is exactly what most men do when they find themselves in an environment where conflicts of interests cannot be avoided, and yet the capacity to define the underlying resentment is hard to verbalized.

Men joke about the things dearest to them and discuss seriously, or rather in earnest, the insignificant events of daily living.

This is especially true at BYU where, on the surface in what is supposed to be a "fun loving" satire to pass the conversation of the day, in actuality masks a deeper reality.

BYU will, in all probability, never be the scene of open conflict between past traditions of Mormon culture and the influx of liberalism progressively coming into its own in the world.

However, with the passage of time, the cleavage ward conservative and liberals ways among those who consider themselves good Mormons becomes more striking.

Mormons, themselves, as have all cultures engaged in the growing pains of tradition, feel forces pulling at them with compunction, but forces which they do not understand or fully appreciate transpiring. Nowhere, particularly at BYU, are seldom discussed freely in conversation, one, because very seldom does anyone know, consciously, that a transformation is taking place.

Secondly, those forces are so complex as to make difficult concise definitions of the fundamental conflicts involved, and even when the fundamentals are recognized to the point of becoming a hypothesis, duty towards mightily in the minds of the faithful and open speculation is difficult and dangerous.

All in all, the majority of students do not understand the forces that govern their unverbalized resentments, and the few intelligent students, and part of the faculty who do have some insight in the forces at work, are not making public utterances.

It may be gleaned from careful analysis of both the quantity of jokes or satirical comments and the nature of the specific content of the remarks themselves, that the seething unrest exists, but there can be no doubt of some wide-spread pervading dissatisfaction.

That dissatisfaction is seldom defined, as these often heard quotes express, but satire allows resentment its expression.

"Only middle of the roaders are allowed on this campus."

"The Universe would never allow you to print it."

"Don't you know that all that counts in life are character qualities."

"Something like that takes place—here—at Brigham Young University" (stated sarcastically)."

BYU students do not joke in jest, but rather they jest at their own resentment. That resentment is legitimate but until defined pressed, they cannot define it.

In fact when outsiders make these same kind of satirical jokes, we Mormon's immediately rush to BYU's defense, because we have a natural feel for the real issues at stake, we none the less sense the reality behind these seemingly casual jokes intended only to be funny.

Booters Edge USU 3-2 On Slick Field

The soccermen from BYU made a successful weekend foray into Cache County in Northern Utah where they edged a tough Utah State University soccer team, 3-2.

A snowshower a few minutes before the game made the proposals of a slick field a sure thing. Both teams found it difficult to keep their feet.

The Aggies had the Cougars under pressure during the first half which saw a USU free kick deflected by the BYU defense into the Cougar goal. The first half ended with Utah State one point up.

The second half opened up with a strong revival by the BYU boosters. A good pass from Ralph Wortert to Bill Forrest went hard by the Aggie goalie into the USU net.

Utah State retaliated with a quick goal and took the lead back. But Riestad, the BYU halfback, surprised the Aggie goalie with a 25-yd. drive and the Cougars were never again behind.

A tremendous team effort by the Brigham hooters paid off as the Aggies spend weekend under pressure. With only a few minutes to go Ed Worfert cleared a path for Forrest to slip a "banana shot" into the Utah State goal.

Kurt Jensen, the fine BYU goalkeeper, was credited with several outstanding saves in defense of the Cougar net.

Y Cowboys Take Third In Bozeman

By Dennis Read
Assistant Sports Editor

Brigham Young University's hard-luck rodeo team lost out in a three-way race over the weekend at the Montana State Intercollegiate Rodeo and wound up third in the team standings. Ricks College and the hosting MSU Bobcats shared the number one spot.

The final results showed the cowhiers only eight points ahead of the Cougar wranglers. Ricks and MSU each posted 286 points, while BYU tallied 197.

Utah State's ranch hands claimed fourth position.

ONE MAN GANG

Burt Randall, BYU's outstanding cowboy from Ashfork, Ariz., was a one man team at the Bozeman roundup, placing second in the ribbon roping and third in the bulldogging. This was the first time Randall had competed in the dogging event.

Elray Hendricks, never one to come away empty-handed, won a third place in the bareback riding to add to the Cougars' point total.

The rest of the Cougar riders fared worse getting only hurt pride for their efforts. Jerry Meyers, Grant Fox and Jack Nulder, who provided the team's main strength last season, either got bucked off or didn't place.

This weekend the BYU team will attempt to break into the victory column when it competes in two rodeos—one at Pocatello sponsored by Idaho State University and the other at Ricks College.

Ruggers Host Wash. State

The state of Utah's first intercollegiate rugby match plus the inaugural of the Cougar Cup will highlight the Saturday meeting of BYU and Washington State in rugby on Haws Field at 2 p.m.

The BYU Cougar ruggers, fresh from a 40-11 triumph over San Mateo here, will try to duplicate he 5-3 win they squeezed out over Washington State last spring in Pullman.

Washington State's mascot is also the Cougar, so the two squads will battle over a Cougar Cup, which will be retained each year by the winning rugby rival.

CLOSE CONTEST

The clash should be a close one as the visiting Cougars bring a very impressive season record to Provo. They finished second in the recent Oregon Rugby Union Football Tournament and have beaten several top-ranked teams on the West Coast.

BYU's rugby club now has a 4-3 record overall. However all three losses came on the road and the club really jelled in its last victory over San Mateo.

Y rugby coach John Seager will probably reverse the strategy he used in the San Mateo game. In that affair, BYU played a "forwards" game in order to contain the lightning speed of the San Mateo backs.

The Washington State backs all outweigh the local backs, but BYU's backs should have the edge in speed, so they will probably play a "backs" game with plenty of outside running.

COACH AUSSIE STAR

The coach of the Washington State club is a former member of the Australian National team, and so should be plotting a careful game plan on the Provo Cougars.

The game is free and the public is invited to the contest. It also climax BYU Rugby Wh which will feature several m films shown nightly and a re tion Saturday night for the vis Washington team.

"We hope this Cougar Cup s ary will become as big as Wagon Wheel between USU BYU in football," said Bob Ka nard, the team's business ma er.

"The cup can be retired if team wins it three years in a ro he added, "after which a new will be presented."

Should the Cougars be "up" much as they were for the San Mateo contest, the home field vantage should make them st favorites in the big clash.

Series Of Family Life Films To Be Produced At BYU

The Department of Motion Pic ture Production and the College of Family Living have launched a cooperative effort to produce a series of family life films at the rate of two per year. These films will deal with such areas of family living as "Mirror, Mirror" dealing with improving one's image of himself.

These films are intended for schools, religious organizations, and civic groups.

The Audio-Visual Aid Dept. has recently received a request from Reverend J. Murray of the University of Notre Dame for the catalog of religious-instructional films and wishes to rent the film "How Do I Love Thee?"

Films have been rented or purchased from Hawaii to Maine.
